

SCHOOL TO TRAIN FOR JOURNALISM

New Department of Missouri University Begins Its Work Today.

IDEA WAS LONG CONTEMPLATED

Practical Instruction Will Be Given, Leading to a B. S. Degree.

The Department of Journalism of the University of Missouri is open for the first time with the session of 1908-9. Instruction in journalism heretofore has consisted merely of occasional lectures by visiting journalists. The new department will give regular courses leading to a degree, Bachelor of Science in Journalism. The department is co-ordinate with the other departments of the University—Law, Medicine, Agriculture, Engineering, the Teachers College, the College of Arts and Science.

The establishment of the Department of Journalism has long been contemplated at the University of Missouri. It was introduced in the alumni address delivered in 1879 by Leonidas M. Lawson, of New York. Charles E. Yeater, of Sedalia, while a member of the State Senate, introduced in that body a bill establishing a chair of journalism. The bill was not passed, however, and failed of adoption. The General Assembly, in 1905, and again in 1907, made appropriation for instruction in journalism.

The Board of Curators, in 1900, during Gov. Stone's administration, offered the headship of the department to a distinguished Missouri journalist, who declined. The Missouri Press Association, in the same year, unanimously adopted resolutions presented by W. O. L. Jewett, of the Shelbina Democrat, favoring the establishment of the department. The curators then formally established a chair of journalism and placed it, temporarily, in the College of Arts and Science, at that time the Academic Department.

Upon further consideration, the curators decided, upon recommendation, in 1906, of a committee of which Dr. A. Ross Hill, then dean of the Teachers College, and Dr. J. C. Jones, dean of the College of Arts and Science, were members, that journalism should be a separate department. Two years later, in April, 1908, the curators, upon recommendation of President-elect Hill and President Jesse, adopted plans for the organization of the department. The result is the department as now organized.

The department faculty consists of Albert Ross Hill, A. B., Ph. D., LL. D., President of the University; Walter Williams, LL. D., Dean of the School and Professor of the History and Principles of Journalism; Silas Bent, A. B., Assistant Professor of the Theory and Practice of Journalism; Charles Griffith Ross, A. B., Instructor in Journalism; Edward Archibald Allen, Litt. D., Professor of English Language and Literature; John Davidson Lawson, LL. D., Professor of Newspaper Jurisprudence; Isidor Loeb, B. S., LL. B., Ph. D., Professor of Political Science and Public Law; Charles A. Ellwood, Ph. B., Ph. D., Professor of Sociology; Norman MacLaren Trenholme, A. B., A. M., Ph. D., Professor of History; Jonas Viles, A. B., A. M., Ph. D., Professor of American History; Murray Shipley Wildman, A. B., Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Economics; Thomas James Riley, A. B., A. M., Assistant Professor of Sociology; Herbert Joseph Davenport, A. B., Ph. D., Professor of Economics; John Sites Ankeny, Jr., A. B., Assistant Professor (in charge) of Illustrative Art; Warren Henry Orr and Ernest Roper Evans, student assistants in Newspaper Making.

Branches to Be Taught.

While all knowledge may be helpful to the journalist, those branches which bear directly upon his daily work are most important. Among these are English, history, economics, government, finance, sociology, philosophy, psychology. Courses in these and other subjects specially designed for students of journalism are given. In addition, there are given courses on the professional side by experienced newspaper men, in the history and principles of journalism, reporting, correspondence, editorial writing, newspaper jurisprudence, illustrative art, newspaper publishing, advertising, circulation, magazine and class journalism, comparative journalism, office equipment and newspaper administration.

The University Missourian will give the students actual laboratory work, the training of a real newspaper office. This is secured for the student practical experience in journalism, professional training and the broad outlook given by University studies and University life.

There is constant call for reporters, editors, special writers, correspondents, publishers, and writers, men in all departments of journalism in city and country, on daily, weekly and monthly journals. It is to supply this demand in the interest of the State, to furnish well-equipped men for leadership in journalism, with high ideals and special training, that the department of journalism is established. It is to train for journalism, not to make journalists. In thus training for journalism the University in large degree serves the State.

The course in journalism covers four years. It may be taken in combination with the courses in the College of Arts and Science necessary to obtain the degree of Bachelor of Arts, so that both degrees may be obtained in five years. Even should the student determine after finishing the course not to enter journalism, the training received will be valuable in other work.

and never spoke affectionately, but always seemed to regard things as a business proposition."

Mrs. Eisele is 45 years old and blond. Her former rival for Eisele's hand is 50 and brunette. Mrs. Clemens, who lays claim to relationship with Mark Twain, is thin and slightly stooped. Her husband was Richard Clemens, and she has four grown children, two of them married.

When Mrs. Clemens was seen by a University Missourian reporter at her home, 10 East Liberty street, in Mexico, she declined to discuss her suit, which is to be tried there at the September term of court. She explained that she hoped her lawyers would be able to settle it out of court.

SUCCESS TO NEW COLLEGE

First Good Wishes Come From Young Woman Graduate.

First among the letters received by the University Missourian from former students of the University was the following appreciated communication from St. Louis:

To the Editor of the University Missourian: "Will you kindly consider me a subscriber to your paper? I would be very much obliged if you will let me know the cost of the paper for a year also. Success to the new College of Journalism. I only wish I could come back for a four years' course."

"With best wishes to you and always love for my dear University."

"Cordially yours,"

HOW STUDENTS ENTER MISSOURI UNIVERSITY

Formal Steps at Beginning Explained for Benefit of Newcomers.

Students who expect to enter the University of Missouri, except those who take special courses, must observe the following routine:

Apply to the Committee on Entrance, of which Dr. Isidor Loeb, Room 46, Academic Hall, is chairman. This committee determines whether applicants have enough units for entrance.

The student should then go to the Treasurer's office, Room 1, Academic Hall, and pay the $5 entrance fee.

The next step is to register at the office of Secretary J. G. Babb. Mr. Babb will supply the student with a study card, on which he or she may write the studies desired in the chosen course.

The dean of the department into which this course falls must then pass on the study card. After the dean approves it the necessary requirements have been complied with.

Students more than 21 years may elect special courses, in which case they need only apply to the dean. The dean gives such students an entrance card without other formality, and they then go to the Treasurer's office.

To Build Model Culvert.

J. E. Pritchard, deputy highway engineer, left last evening for Sedalia to superintend the building of the model culvert on the State Fair Grounds. This culvert is to be exhibited during the week of the Fair, Oct. 3-9.

College Men Stock Judges.

The department of animal husbandry of the College of Agriculture now has four men out over the State acting as judges of live stock at the county fairs.

MANY NEW FACES IN M. U. FACULTY

Six Professors Among the Twenty-five Additions to Teaching Force.

THILLY'S SUCCESSOR IS CHOSEN

Dr. Lovejoy of St. Louis Takes the Chair of Philosophy—Changes in Law School.

The University of Missouri opens today with a new president—Dr. Albert Ross Hill—a new department—that of Journalism—and more than twenty-five new faces in the teaching corps. Of the new members of the faculty, six are professors, three assistant professors and nine instructors. Several assistants have been added in the various departments.

In the College of Arts and Science, Prof. C. Stuart Gager will take the chair of botany, left vacant by the resignation of Prof. B. M. Duggar. Dr. Gager is a graduate of Syracuse University and for the last four years has been director of the laboratories at the New York Botanical Gardens.

Dr. H. J. Davenport, who becomes professor of economics, recently has held the rank of associate professor in Chicago University. He will fill the chair which has been vacant since the resignation of Prof. J. E. Pope three years ago. Dr. Davenport has written extensively on economic subjects.

George E. Dutton, instructor, will have charge of the work in the English department of Dr. A. H. R. Fairchild, who will spend the coming term on leave of absence in Europe. New instructors in the English department are Dr. Charles A. Meyers and Dr. R. D. Miller.

J. F. Sievers will be an assistant in the German department. In History, E. V. Vaughn will be on leave of absence and his place will be filled by Eugene Fair, a graduate of Missouri University, who has been instructor in History in the State Normal School at Kirksville for the last four years.

Dr. Westfall Returns to University.

Dr. W. D. A. Westfall, assistant professor of mathematics, returns from a year of study abroad to take up his work in the department. W. S. Pemberton, formerly an assistant in the department, and lately of the faculty of the University of Oklahoma, returns to Missouri University as assistant in mathematics. W. M. Wible will be another assistant in this branch. These two succeed Miss A. M. Liepner, who becomes an instructor in the Westport High School of Kansas City, and Miss Alice M. Paine, who resigned to be married.

Dr. A. O. Lovejoy, of Washington University, St. Louis, has been appointed to the chair of philosophy, left vacant four years ago by the resignation of Prof. Frank Thilly. Dr. Lovejoy is a graduate of Harvard and California Universities, and for the last eight years has been head of the Department of Philosophy in Washington University. Dr. J. W. Hudson, for the last four years instructor in California and Harvard Universities, will be assistant professor of philosophy and psychology. His main work will be in ethics. Dr. W. B. Elkin refused to be re-appointed to this position on account of his health.

Dr. R. E. Loving, of the Department of Physics, has resigned to take the professorship of Physics in his Alma Mater, Richmond College, Virginia. His place as instructor will be filled by H. L. Rentschler, who recently has been engaged in research work in Johns Hopkins University.

No Successor to Dr. Weeks.

Dr. Chester Murray, lately instructor in French and Italian in Cornell University, has been appointed assistant professor of Romance languages. A successor to Prof. Weeks in this department has not been chosen.

In the Teachers College, Dr. W. W. Charters, who last year was substitute professor of the theory and practice of teaching, has been appointed permanent assistant professor of education. R. W. Selvidge becomes instructor in manual training. N. O. Hopkins, for several years principal of the Columbia Normal Academy, succeeds Carter Alexander as principal of the Teachers College High School. Miss Carolyn Benton will be assistant principal.

Charles K. Francis has been appointed instructor in Agricultural Chemistry in the College of Agriculture. Three new assistants have been chosen.

Prof. Henry C. Hill, of Bowdoin College, Maine, and of the University of Michigan Law School, has been chosen professor of real property and corporations. Prof. Hill practiced law nine years in Detroit and for the last three years has been professor in the Law Department of the John B. Stetson University, Florida.

One other appointment has been made in the Law Department—that of Prof.

ST. JOSEPH WANTS BIG GAME AGAIN

Where to Hold Thanksgiving Contest Puzzles Athletic Authorities.

TEBEAU ASKS 17 1-2 PER CENT

Training Begins for First Football Struggle With Warrensburg.

Where to play the annual Thanksgiving Day football game of the Universities of Missouri and Kansas is puzzling the athletic heads of both schools. George Tebeau, owner of the Association Park in Kansas City, wants a five-year contract and 17 1-2 per cent of the gross receipts of the game for the use of the park. It yet remains for the two universities to accept or reject the proposition.

If the negotiations with Tebeau fall through, the game probably will be taken again to St. Joseph. Dr. Andrew J. Bass, a former student of the University, now a dentist in St. Joseph, was in Columbia last week on behalf of the citizens of that place to urge that the game again be played there. Missouri's third city got its first taste of real intercollegiate football last year and is prepared to make an attractive offer for the game.

Training Begins Now.

Until last year, when the managements of the universities were unable to agree on terms for the use of Association Park, the game had been played in Kansas City.

Training for the first football game of the season in Columbia, that with the Warrensburg Normal team, Oct. 3, will begin at once under the direction of Dr. W. J. Monilaw, coach of athletic teams, and "Izy" Anderson, assistant coach. Dr. Monilaw yesterday predicted a winning season for the Missouri Tigers.

Nearly all of the seasoned players of last year are expected to return to school. Only two, Kurtz and Rutherford, are lost to the team by graduation. A strong array of heavy men, like Captain Miller, Carothers, Deatherage, Driver, Burgess, Ristine, Alexander and Gilchrist, will be on the field for the early practice.

Good Games Here.

Missouri's football schedule has been arranged with a view to having all the games possible on the home grounds. The Rolla School of Mines team will follow the Normal school, for a game here Oct. 10. One week later will come the University of Iowa, followed Oct. 24 by Westminster College of Fulton, Mo. On Oct. 31 the Tigers will meet the team from the Iowa State College on Rollins field.

The first of the two out-of-town games of the season will be the following week, Nov. 7, with the Drake University team at Des Moines, Ia.

Nov. 14, Washington University of St. Louis sends a team to meet the Tigers here. That will close the local schedule, with the exception of an exhibition game Nov. 21. The final struggle, that for which all the others are preparing, will be with the Jayhawker team Thanksgiving Day.

IN JOURNALISM ABROAD

University of Birmingham Plans a Course to Begin This Fall.

Albert Halstead, son of the famous American journalist, Murat Halstead, now Consul-General of the United States at Birmingham, writes expressing his pleasure at the establishment of a department of journalism in the University of Missouri. He adds that the University of Birmingham has decided to establish courses in journalism this fall. Lectures on journalism will be given by professors in the University on these subjects: professional journalism, modern history, elements of political philosophy, economics and English literature.

A fund will be established to pay for these lectures and students will be required to pay tuition.

Thomas A. Street to the chair of equity. He was formerly professor of law in Vanderbilt University, but for the last few years has given his time to writing. Among the publications of Prof. Street are "The Foundations of Legal Liability," in three volumes, and a "Treatise on Equity Practice in Federal Courts," the latter just published.

In the Department of Medicine Dr. O. W. H. Mitchell will be assistant in pathology. Several assistants have been appointed in the Department of Engineering, among them H. W. Gray, of Colorado Springs, instructor in Civil Engineering; Ralph E. Duffey, assistant in Mechanical Engineering, and Joseph H. Brooking, assistant in Surveying.
